

Table of Contents

Prologue	VII
1. Introduction to Political Economics	1
1.1 The Political Economic Approach	3
1.2 Political Institutions	7
1.3 A simple Example: Indirect Utility Function, Single-Peaked Preferences and the Bliss Point	12
2. Electoral Models	15
2.1 The Median Voter Model	17
2.2 Probabilistic Voting Model	21
2.3 An example of Simple Majority Voting and Probabilistic Voting	29
3. Lobbying	33
3.1 Public Policy: A Local Public Good	34
3.2 Lobbying	38
4. Facts, Data and Relevant Issues of the Welfare State	43
4.1 Economic Policies and the Role of Government	44
4.2 Size and Composition of the Welfare State	48
4.3 Labor Market Issues	51
4.4 The Economic Approach to Government Intervention	56
4.5 The Political-Economics Approach to Government Intervention	60
4.6 Citizens' Opinions on the Welfare State	61
5. Redistributive Transfers in the Welfare State	65
5.1 The Economic Model	66
5.2 The Redistributive System: Winners and Losers	68

5.3 The Political Decision	72
5.4 Discussion	73
6. Pensions	77
6.1 The Economic Environment of the Voting Models	79
6.2 Individual Preferences over Pension Systems	81
6.3 Voting on Pension Systems	87
6.4 Population Aging and Pension Systems	89
7. Labor Market Policies	93
7.1 A simple Political Economy Model	94
7.2 Labor Market Institutions	96
7.3 The Political Game	99
7.4 Discussion	100
8. Structural Reforms	103
8.1 Describing Structural Reforms	104
8.2 Determinants of Structural Reforms	108
8.3 Designing Structural Reforms	111
9. The Politics of Anger	115
9.1 The Effects of Migration on the Natives: Theoretical Aspects	117
9.2 The Economic Effects of Migration: Some Empirical Evidence	120
9.3 Individual Preferences over Migration Policy	122
9.4 Parties Preferences on Immigration Policy	126
9.5 Only Migration Causes Anger?	126
Bibliography	129