

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	XIX
Foreword, by Adam Tooze	XXI
1 European Economic Policymaking under Duress: My Own Account	1
1 Florence, Oxford, Brussels	1
2 The Pioneers, the Architects and the Builders	2
3 The circumstances: the global financial crisis, the rise of populism and the pandemic	7
4 The role of the European Commission in policy design and coordination	15
5 Some lessons for the future	20
Europe 2008-2021: A Chronology	23
Part A.
EMU: Past, Present and Future
2 The First Ten Years of the Euro	39
1 Introduction	39
2 Uncertain beginnings	40
3 A decade of success	41
4 The challenges ahead	42
3 The Commission's Proposals for Stronger EU Economic Governance	45
1 What are the main goals?	45
2 What is new and why do we need it?	47

3	Would the new tools have made a difference?	48
4	Will it work this time?	52
4	Stronger EU Economic Governance: A Response to the Critics	55
1	Common analysis but diverging conclusions	55
2	The big picture	56
3	Enforcement, yes please. Sanctions, no thanks	57
4	What is not “empty and useless”	59
5	Macroeconomic policy analysis in flux	60
5	Smoothing Economic Shocks in the Eurozone: The Untapped Potential of the Financial Union	61
1	The importance of resilience to shocks in the Eurozone	61
2	Cross-border risk-sharing channels	63
3	What is the size of the various risk-sharing channels in the Eurozone and the US?	65
4	Conclusion	66
6	Completing EMU	69
1	EMU has been reformed but is still in an unsustainable equilibrium	69
2	Completing Financial Union to increase risk-sharing and reduce legacy risks	72
3	Achieving a more integrated Economic and Fiscal Union	76
4	Strengthening Eurozone institutions and accountability	78
5	Conclusions	79
7	Deepening EMU Requires a Coherent and Well-Sequenced Package	81
1	Building on the progress made	81
2	Preserving financial stability is of the utmost importance	82
3	A stone that could hit many birds	84
4	Conclusion	86
8	The Case for a Central Fiscal Capacity in EMU	87
1	Introduction	87
2	Is there evidence of large cyclical fluctuations in EMU, including country-specific components?	88
3	Does private risk-sharing via the completion of Banking Union and CMU eliminate the case for a central fiscal capacity?	90

4	Do national fiscal stabilisers within the SGP suffice to smooth the remaining shocks?	93
5	Does a central fiscal capacity necessarily entail moral hazard and permanent transfers?	95
6	Conclusions	96
9	The Euro, a Tale of 20 Years: The Priorities Going Forward	99
1	Coming of age	99
2	The Maastricht assignment	100
3	The Eurozone throughout the crisis: weaknesses of EMU's architecture come to the fore	101
4	Reforms during the crisis, but job still not completed	105
5	Conclusion	106
10	Should the Eurozone Be Less Intergovernmental?	109
1	Intergovernmentalism versus Supranationalism	109
2	The "new" economic governance framework	110
3	Is the new intergovernmental model successful?	113
4	The way forward: recreating the "veil of ignorance"	116

Part B.
Fiscal Policy and Fiscal Rules

11	Fiscal Austerity and Policy Credibility	123
1	Introduction	123
2	The debate on fiscal austerity: a stylised representation	125
3	How the EU fiscal framework fits in the policy debate	127
4	Conclusion	129
12	Fiscal Policy in Europe: Searching for the Right Balance	131
1	Introduction	131
2	Allegations and rejoinders	132
3	Broader implications	136
13	What is a "Responsible" Fiscal Policy Today for Europe?	139
1	Introduction	139
2	Navigating in a grey reality	140
3	Heading north or south?	141
4	Conclusion	144

14	Designing Fiscal Policy for Steady, Enduring Growth	145
1	Why fiscal stabilisation?	145
2	The importance of automatic stabilisers	148
3	How to improve automatic stabilisers?	149
4	Conclusion	151
15	Fiscal Space and Low Interest Rates: A Eurozone Perspective	153
1	The basic arithmetic of debt, growth and interest rates	153
2	What is the empirical evidence and prospects?	154
3	Eurozone specificities	157
4	Which “debt anchors” in the EU?	157
5	Conclusions	160
16	Why We Need a Positive Fiscal Stance for the Eurozone and What It Means	161
1	Introduction	161
2	Why a positive fiscal stance for the Eurozone?	162
3	The desirable fiscal stance from a Eurozone standpoint	165
4	Toward a better composition of the Eurozone fiscal stance	166
5	Concluding remarks	167
17	Potential Output and EU Fiscal Surveillance	169
1	Introduction	169
2	The structural focus of the SGP’s “second generation” fiscal rules has improved EU fiscal surveillance	170
3	The issue of potential output unobservability and recent criticisms of the EU’s output gap estimates	171
4	Are recent criticisms of the EU’s CAM based on solid empirical evidence?	174
5	Dealing with potential output unobservability in EU fiscal surveillance must involve an element of constrained judgement	175
6	Conclusion	177

Part C.

The Political Economy of European Integration

18	Can Governments Implement Structural Reforms and Yet Be Re-Elected?	183
1	Juncker’s curse	183

2	Raw evidence	184
3	Finance, reform, and elections	185
4	Conclusions	187
19	Reform and Be Re-Elected: Evidence from the Post-Crisis Period	189
1	Juncker's curse again	189
2	The record before and after the crisis	190
3	What lessons can we draw?	192
4	Conclusion	193
20	A Consistent Trinity for the Eurozone	195
1	Post-crisis "inconsistent trinitities"	195
2	Structural reforms to safeguard European welfare systems	196
3	Reclaiming macroeconomic policy space for greater adjustment symmetry	197
4	Effectively combatting systemic financial sector vulnerabilities	199
5	Overcoming the policy conflicts	200
21	Delivering the Eurozone "Consistent Trinity"	203
1	Introduction	203
2	Changing challenges: structural reforms and rotation of demand	204
3	Eurozone governance coming of age	208
22	Europe's Incompatible Political Trinitities	211
1	EU economic policy coordination: where we come from	211
2	The EU after the financial crisis: policy challenges and their political consequences	212
3	Overcoming inconsistent trinitities to achieve a new political synthesis	218
23	European Integration and Populism: Addressing Dahrendorf's Quandary	221
1	The tide has turned	221
2	A populist backlash with economic and cultural roots	222
3	The EU and European integration as an easy target for populist onslaught	225
4	Some guiding principles for a new positive EU narrative	228

Part D.
Real Economy and Convergence During the “Great Recession”

24	Slow but Steady? External Adjustment Within the Eurozone Starts Working	237
1	Introduction	237
2	Wage and competitiveness adjustment, where do we stand?	238
3	What’s next?	240
4	What is missing?	244
5	Conclusions	245
25	From a Vicious to a Virtuous Circle in the Eurozone: The Time Is Ripe	247
1	The need to focus on a strategic response to the crisis	247
2	A five-point strategy to ensure a good equilibrium	248
3	Weak economic growth remains the key challenge	249
26	How to Make Europe’s Incipient Recovery Durable: End Policy Uncertainty	251
1	A subdued and fragile recovery	251
2	A targeted policy response to make the recovery durable	254
3	Conclusion	259
27	How to Make Europe’s Incipient Recovery Durable: A Rejoinder	261
1	Introduction	261
2	Is fiscal consolidation at the root of the current investment-growth differentials between the Eurozone and the US?	262
3	Have Eurozone-specific sources of uncertainty affected growth?	263
4	Do structural reforms boost growth in a low-growth environment?	265
5	To conclude	270
28	Lacklustre Investment in the Eurozone: Is There a Puzzle?	271
1	On the importance of investment for the Eurozone economy	271
2	It’s the accelerator, stupid! Or is it?	272
3	How to unleash investment spending?	275

29 Lacklustre Investment in the Eurozone:
The Policy Response	279
1 Explaining investment weakness	279
2 The need of a comprehensive policy strategy	280
3 The Investment Plan for Europe: the €300 billion question and more	281
4 A key complement: removing sectoral and other financial and non-financial barriers	284
30 Three Waves of Convergence: Can Eurozone Countries Start Growing Together Again?	287
1 Introduction	287
2 The faces of economic convergence	288
3 The three waves of convergence in EMU	289
4 Can Eurozone countries start growing together again?	293
31 Overcoming Eurozone Wage Inertia	297
1 Can we have price stability, Eurozone rebalancing, and uncoordinated competitiveness developments?	297
2 The current coordination framework and its rationale	300
3 Why coordination helps	302
4 Conclusion	303
Part E.
Eastern Enlargement, Global Governance and the Euro
32 Five Years after the Enlargement of the EU	309
1 New members and old members	309
2 The EU made a difference, but not every country took full advantage	311
3 A three-pronged strategy to safeguard achievements	312
4 Conclusion	313
33 Trade Shocks, Growth, and Resilience: Eastern Europe's Adjustment Tale	315
1 The unusual nature of the EU11	315
2 Global value chains and FDI inflows	317
3 Economic responses during the crisis: a model-based simulation	322

4	Adjustment to shocks	324
5	Policy options	325
34	“Winning the Peace”: The Challenge for the G20	329
1	Introduction	329
2	The G20 is lagging behind on its growth ambition	330
3	Necessary conditions for G20 to deliver growth	331
4	Reformulating international economic policy coordination	334
35	Governing a Fragmented World Economy: Towards Inclusive Multilateralism	337
1	Clouds are gathering on the outlook	337
2	Institutional, economic and social fragmentation remain pervasive	338
3	What kind of multilateralism?	340
4	What should be the role of Europe?	342
5	Conclusions	344
36	The International Role of the Euro: From Monetary Independence to Monetary Sovereignty	345
1	The international role of the euro: time to revisit the benign neglect	345
2	The international role of the euro in figures: untapped potential?	348
3	Determinants of the global use of a currency: where does the euro stand?	350
4	Towards a stronger international use of the euro	352
5	Conclusion	353

Part F.
Between Two Crises

37	Right Here, Right Now: The Quest for a More Balanced Policy Mix	361
1	Introduction	361
2	A better policy set-up is needed to lift economies back to growth	362
3	There is a strong case for a more supportive fiscal policy in the Eurozone	365

4	Now is the time to invest in stronger and more sustainable economies for the future	367
38	Economic Policy in the Rough: A European Journey	371
1	Introduction	371
2	Moment one: Latvia and the other Baltics – a prequel to the crisis	372
3	Moment two: the Deauville meeting on 18 October 2010	374
4	Moment three: the Toronto G20 Summit in June 2010	377
5	Moment four: Greece – a fiscal and a structural crisis	379
6	Moment five: Mario Draghi’s speech at the Jackson Hole Symposium in August 2014	382
7	Key lessons for future work on the Economic and Monetary Union	384
39	A Tale of Two Crises: Lessons from the Financial Crisis to Prevent the Great Fragmentation	389
1	COVID-19: a tragedy with huge economic costs	389
2	Preventing the Great Fragmentation: lessons from the financial crisis	392
3	The European response: Next Generation EU	396
4	Stronger political integration ahead?	397
40	Veto Player Theory and the Governance of the Recovery and Resilience Facility	401
1	The Recovery and Resilience Facility impossible trinity	401
2	The governance of the national plans	402
3	The veto player theory: single and multiple veto players	405
4	Veto players and the governance of the RRF: theory and practice	407
5	Final remarks	412
41	The Legacy of the Pandemic: How COVID-19 Is Reshaping Economic Policy in the EU	415
1	The EU: a history of resilience	415
2	The COVID economic policy response	416
3	How macroeconomics has changed	419
4	The different features of the COVID-19 crisis	422
5	Policy learning from the financial crisis	423
6	Getting the EU governance right	425

7	Making sure the COVID response works – looking at Member States	426
8	Conclusions – post-COVID shaping factors	429
42	A Curiosum: When Dunning-Kruger Meets Carlo M. Cipolla at the Time of COVID-19	433
	Postscript: The Value of “Just in Case” Policymaking by Martin Sandbu	437
	Bibliography	443
	Index of names	475